Welcome to the Pouch Summer newsletter!

Summer sale

I am currently offering 20% off all our vintage fabric peg bags. Line-drying your clothes is an easy way to save energy and reduce household bills. By reducing the number of times you use a tumble drier by just one load per week, you will reduce your carbon emissions by approximately 60kg a year. And reduce your electricity bill! New selection of vintage trims

I have been busily adding more vintage trims in my Etsy store over the past week, perfect for adding a unique twist to your next crafting project. Due to the fact these trims are vintage, they are limited edition. Once they are gone, I cannot source more - so if you see something you like - grab it quick! Magazine feature

I was so excited to be featured in the first ever issue of 'Sew Eco' magazine in July. Pouch is listed in the 'Gallery of Inspiration' section at the front of the publication. They have included a lovely big image of the 'go green reversible market day tote', I think it looks fab! You can see images of the feature by visiting my blog here: <http://tinyurl.com/3v49yfe>

Charity listing - Lavender rabbit in spring green

I'm continuing to raise money for the Children's Hospice in the South West of England by selling Spring Green Lavender rabbits. 50% of the retail price will go straight to the charity. The Children's Hospice provide invaluable support for families looking after children with incurable illnesses. The support they give extends to the whole family, into bereavement and beyond for as long as each family needs them.

Available in dollars $ on Etsy
